

An External Hemorrhoid Treatment That doesn't Require Surgery

Hemorrhoids can be quite painful, as anyone who has ever experienced them can attest to. While dietary changes are the best way to cure the problem, exterior hemorrhoid treatment is usually necessary to alleviate swelling, itchiness, and pain associated with hemorrhoids. While many over the counter items offer some relief, there are far less expensive and more effective natural home remedies that can provide instant results without messy creams or ointments.

“ Very simple external hemorrhoid treatment is ice. Putting a cold shrink on the area will quickly work to reduce inflammation and soreness. A chilly bath tub can have the same result. A cotton compress to which you have applied witch hazel or capsaicin can have a numbing effect while also reducing blood flow to the area, lowering inflammation and bleeding.

Perhaps the Best Immediate Treatment is to Create a Cranberry Poultice

This is made by blending cranberries in a mixer. Wrap the resulting powder in a piece of cheesecloth and apply to the area for about one hour. A great remedy is to mix equal parts germanium oil and almond oil, both of which can be found at organic or holistic meals stores, and applying the mixture to the area. This combination kills germs, preventing infection, and also helps pass stool more gently, reducing the pressure on the area.
